About Us

Manufacturing Excellence at Scale

Fitzgerald Kitchens is an Irish kitchen manufacturer and installation partner, supporting residential developments and private homes from our facility in Lugduff, Co. Wicklow. Established as a family business in 1987, we have built our reputation through quality, consistency and long-term client relationships.

Today, our experience is backed by modern manufacturing technology, dedicated project teams and the capacity to deliver large-scale residential developments. Continued investment in automation, machinery and in-house stone fabrication strengthens our control over production and quality.

From design and specification through manufacturing, delivery, installation and handover, we coordinate the complete kitchen package. One accountable team manages the process from factory floor to completed development.

With capacity to manufacture up to 120 kitchens per week, we are equipped to meet demanding construction programmes while maintaining quality and delivery standards. We manufacture. We deliver at scale. We take responsibility.
